

Chris Saunders - Leadership Expert, Coach, Mentor, Speaker, and Trainer

Christine Saunders is the founder of Chris Saunders Consulting. Chris is passionate about growing leaders and organizations. Before being mentored by John Maxwell (often called the country's No. 1 leadership authority) and his team of experts, she spent over 26 years in leadership roles with most of that time spent working for Fortune 500 companies such as Wells Fargo. Chris also worked in the Credit Union Industry before taking her passion for people and leadership on the road. Chris successfully developed many teams of passionate, goal-oriented employees along with compassionate, people-focused leaders to lead them.

Chris holds a professional certificate from UC Berkeley and the Greater Good Science Center. She now brings her experience and love for people to all industries.

Chris believes that leading with love creates happiness in the workplace therefore providing an environment where people can thrive, succeed, and grow. By building trust and providing purpose, employees are more committed to the success of the organization. She understands the importance of communication and clarity of vision and will help you develop into the transformational leader that people will trust and follow.

